AT A GLANCE

The journey

Ten days allows every park on the northern circuit and a rest day at each end of the trip.

A free day in Arusha comes first, to shake off the flight. The safari then visits Tarangire and Lake Manyara on consecutive days before crossing to the Serengeti for three nights. With two full days there, your guide can spend one looking for the migration and another exploring the kopjes and quieter river loops away from the main Seronera circuit.

Ngorongoro Crater is the last game drive. From there you continue to Moshi for a day at leisure in the foothills of Kilimanjaro.

Good for: travellers who want the full northern circuit without long consecutive driving days. It also suits anyone who wants margin in the schedule for delayed flights or luggage.
