AT A GLANCE

Tour Overview

Ten days that cover the three things most people want from Tanzania: the Serengeti migration, time with local communities, and a beach.

The safari half runs from Arusha through Tarangire to the Serengeti, where two nights give you a full day and two half-days with the herds and the predators that follow them. Where the wildebeest are depends on the month, and we will advise whether the central Serengeti suits your dates or whether a camp further south or north would be better. You then descend into Ngorongoro Crater and spend a day at Lake Eyasi with the Hadzabe and Datoga.

After a Maasai village visit you fly to Zanzibar for three nights. The beach days are free, with Stone Town, a spice farm and snorkelling trips available as extras.

Good for: a first visit to Tanzania with two weeks or less. Flights to Zanzibar and beach accommodation are part of the route; check the inclusions for what is covered.
