AT A GLANCE

The journey

This itinerary takes the three most important northern parks and gives each one time, with a private guide and small camps throughout.

Two nights in Tarangire allow a full day in the quieter south of the park, where gerenuk and lesser kudu live and few vehicles go. A night in the Karatu highlands includes a coffee farm visit, and the following morning you descend early into Ngorongoro Crater for up to six hours on the floor.

The Serengeti gets three nights at a camp of a few tents in a less visited area. That leaves room for a balloon flight, a full day following the migration and a last day built around whatever you still want to see. You fly out from the Serengeti.

Good for: travellers who want a high-end safari without a beach extension, and photographers who need unhurried time at sightings.
